Dear Members,

The Bengal Club Library event on Saturday, 10 November with young poets of the city who will read from their own work and engage with the audience promises to be a stimulatingly different experience.

The event will be an interactive one in which the poets will discuss their poems and invite the reaction and comments of the audience in a freewheeling informal style more evocative of an adda rather than a formal talk.

The young poets are all important voices of their generation, published, and looking forward to the chance of sharing their verse, thoughts and perspectives with you.

I urge you all to make this event a success by participating in it - please call Reception to register.

With best wishes,
